AAA DECISION REVIEWED BY DEPUTY CITY ATTORNEY

President Felt of the local club was chairman of the program Wednesday, with the speaker being James H. McKinney, deputy in the city attorney's office, who spoke about "The Supreme Court Decision on the AAA."

Preceding McKinney's talk, Harry Herz gave a short biography of this junior club member's life, which started in Missouri, where he graduated from law school, practicing in Billings, Montana, as one of his first assignments, moving to San Diego a number of years ago. He was a deputy district attorney for four years and has also conducted his own private practice from offices in the Commonwealth bldg.

Bob Clayton who will soon open a "five and ten" store in Mission Beach was a guest of Harry Herz. Announcement was made of the ladies night program next Tuesday evening when the women folk of Kiwanis will dine with their husbands and conduct a program which promises to be most enjoyable.

Ben Franklin Store In Fine New Location

The opening of Lowmes' Ben Franklin store in their new quarters last Saturday was a most satisfactory affair notwithstanding the heavy showers during the day.

The new store was entirely equipped with the most modern fixtures and many remarks of complimentary character were heard for Mr. and Mrs. Lowmes, proprietors, who have the foresight to go ahead and prepare for a larger business in our largely growing population.

If you have not visited this Ben Franklin store you should do so. One of our citizens was heard to remark: "My wife is a careful buyer and says she can shop as satisfactorily at Lowmes as any place in San Diego. Prices are as low as any place in San Diego and merchandise fully as good."

FLOOD CONTROL OF S. D. RIVER FEDERAL JOB

Charles Hoopes, local engineer, last week received a letter from Congressman Burnham stating that he had on January 24th introduced a bill in Congress "to authorize a preliminary examination of the San Diego river and its tributaries in California with a view to the control of its floods."

Mr. Hoopes believes this will be a splendid opportunity for this state and county to be relieved of this work and that it should be a permanent program of army engineers who would handle the matter in a manner that would be of lasting benefit to this section.

The bill referred to is H. R. 10583.

COLLECTING NEWS SUBSCRIPTIONS

Roland E. Peebles, February graduate of Point Loma high school is in the field collecting News subscriptions that are 6 months or more in arrears. It is several months since this end of this business has been given any attention and while some folks come in the very day their subscriptions expire, there are others who forget how fast time flies and do not think of it until they have a gentle reminder.

Roland will later be out for new subscribers and old ones who have "wandered from the path," also look up some additional advertising and perhaps commercial printing.

Like the Dog In the Manger

(The Keyhole)
A few residents in the Sunset Cliff district, are blocking something that would be of benefit to the rest of San Diego and Imperial county, and just because they feel that their property might be damaged by having the hoi polloi of the county enjoying themselves by catching a few fish from the ocean fronting their property.

It is a cinch these same people who are making such a tremendous squawk don't use the ocean front for fishing. All they do is sit in their palatial homes and gaze out at the waves. If they want to go fishing, their incomes are sufficient to rent a boat and go out to sea while the poor unfortunate who labors for his living and may have a few dollars once a year to spend on having an outing, has to sit at home, because he cannot afford to go out to sea because some person who can afford even to buy a boat for his fishing pleasure, doesn't want his view of the ocean obstructed.

There is much to be said in favor of having a fishing pier built in the Sunset Cliffs district.

First the kelp beds lie very close to shore at this point and everyone knows that the fish play around the kelp and that when there are no fish to be had any place else, they will swarm up from under the kelp to take the bait.

Then the engineers have found that a pier could be built at this particular point with less expense than some of the other sites which have been named and which the residents of this Sunset Cliff district have asked the city council of San Diego to use instead of the proposed Sunset Cliffs site.

Again we might point out that the Sunset Cliffs district a municipally owned park and as such, there would be no necessity of buying up a lot of land adjacent thereto in order to have a proper approach for a fishing pier.

And as we understand it, parks are meant for the amusement and recreation of the public at large and not for a privileged few, so why shouldn't a fishing pier be built in a state park?

Perhaps it isn't any of our business to stick our noses into the business of fishing piers, but when thousands of "Ike Walton" followers are so vitally interested and when there is only a total of 30 residents, more or less, who are opposing and causing the obstruction of something that would bring pleasure to thousands and attract innumerable tourists to San Diego and vicinity, we feel that we should take some notice and call attention of the general public to the situation.

We believe and we will always believe that a favored few should not have all the benefits of a state or municipal park which is intended for the masses and we feel that anything that will benefit the greatest number of people is what the city council and the state legislators should consider when they vote to build or not to build.

We enjoy fishing and we should have the privilege of fishing on a city-owned pier built for the enjoyment of the many at Sunset Cliffs.

San Diego County Has New Assessor

The county board of supervisors Tuesday appointed Crowell D. Eddy of National City as assessor of San Diego county to fill the vacancy caused by the removal from office of James Hervey Johnson who last week was convicted on a felony charge for making illegal tax refunds on personal property.

The appointee is a resident of National City. He served two terms as assessor in the state legislature, representing the 80th assembly district, and was for four years postmaster of National City. For several months he has been secretary of the San Diego county farm bureau.

Eddy is a director of the San Diego chamber of commerce and was active in the preparation and maintenance of this county's exhibit during the Exposition's first season.

Eddy under the board's appointment will serve until time of the next general election in November. He indicated that he would seek election to the office.

"If at the time of the election I have put the office into shape so that it commands the respect of all responsible parties of the county I may logically present myself for election."

Chamber Commerce Mass Meeting

There will be a mass meeting called by Ocean Beach chamber of commerce next Monday evening, February 10th at the Woman's club, where a representative of the Santa Fe Ry., will be heard favoring the granting of bus privileges to that company by the state railroad commission.

The deeding of Collier park by the city of San Diego to the city school board, to be used for high school purposes, is also an important matter that will be taken up and plans made for this change at an early election if the proper authorities can be made to realize the urgent need for it.

The fishing pier will likely be discussed and present progress noted or plans made for future action in regard to this recreational feature. If you are interested in Ocean Beach's progress, you should be there.

FIRE ZONE RESTRICTIONS LIFTED ON NEWPORT AVE

The fire restrictions, which have called for masonry or solid walls in buildings on Newport avenue, from the beach to Sunset Cliffs blvd., will now be lifted, it is believed, for recommendation was made last Friday by the building code board of examiners to the city council after a hearing on the matter.

With these restrictions gone Newport avenue will possibly, in the near future, take a building spurt and many believe that sufficiently substantial buildings can be made by the use of stucco and other material that will not detract from the appearance which a main business shopping center should have.

REQUIEM MASS HELD TUESDAY FOR RETIRED MAN

Graduation Ceremony Impressive Event

Attractive bouquets amidst white and red, combined to make a beautiful setting for the graduation of 22 Point Loma high school students, the evening of January 31.

Parents and friends of the graduates witnessed the procession with dimming eyes, as the class marched in to Pomp and Circumstance, played by the high school orchestra.

Rev. W. S. Dunn, of the Ocean Beach Baptist church, gave the invocation, followed by the class president, Faye Emerson, rendering the Pledge of Allegiance. "To Thee We Sing" and "Deep River" was sung by the Point Loma combined glee clubs.

Juanita Herz presented a talk on "School Days," stating the pleasures and pastimes of the students while in school. Eileen Campbell-Shields, second in line for valedictorian, gave a talk on graduation, pointing out the joy and pleasures of last school days, and Caryne Schneider, valedictorian, presented "What Next?" in which she told of the advantages and disadvantages of graduating at the present time.

The orchestra then played "Allegretto from Seventh Symphony by Beethoven, followed by the presentation of the class, by Clarence R. Swenson, principal, and presentation of diplomas by Mrs. Vesta Muehlenisen, member of the San Diego Board of Education.

The class then sang "Point Loma We Love Thee," concluding the program with the recessional to "March Militaire," played by the orchestra.

It is not doubtful to say that many hearts were touched by the music, the beauty of the girls' dresses, and the thought that another group of the large family of Point Loma has gone out to seek its way in the world.

High School Student Dies Suddenly

Students of Point Loma high school were especially saddened last week end when they learned of the sudden death from heart failure of Gay Trevor Roper Woodward, 18, senior fellow student, at his home 675 Bow avenue. He was the son of Dr. and Mrs. H. T. Woodward.

Although in ill health several years, he never lost his enthusiasm for his studies and student activities. An honor student and one of the most popular boys of Point Loma high school, Trevor, as he was known, was student body auditor, a member of the glee club and vice president of the Point Loma H. Y. He also was a member of the San Diego Yacht club.

In addition to his parents he is survived by two sisters, Mary Patricia Woodward, San Diego and Mrs. Hans Hau, Oakland, and a brother, Tedham Woodward, Los Altos, Cal. With the Rev. Charles L. Barnes, retiring rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church officiating, funeral services were held Monday at 4 p. m. at Bonham Brothers' chapel.

VARNEYS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Last Sunday night about 11 o'clock when Mr. and Mrs. Charles Varney had alighted from a street car they were just reaching the curb as they crossed the street at Bacon to go east on Saratoga avenue. Mrs. Varney, a step ahead of her husband, was missed by a large sedan without lights but the car struck the suit case Mr. Varney was carrying, crashing it against his leg and whirling him about and throwing him face down on the street.

Local police were called and took the Varneys to their home, where it was 4 hours or more before he recovered consciousness. This was a very narrow escape from a most careless and reckless driver, traveling late at night without lights, and it is hoped that some clue might be found as to the person's identity, in order that they might be punished for their recklessness.

Last reports from the Varney home, is to the effect that they are pretty well recovered from their experience.

PLHS—

The tenth grade students at Point Loma high school, under the direction of their teacher, Miss A. Bess Clark, are writing on "How Can This Country Stay Out of War?" the title suggested by Eddie Cantor for his contest, offering a 5000 dollar scholarship for the best essay of 500 words. Although Point Loma students placed first, third, and honorable mention in a national Y.M.C.A. contest last summer, they have little hope of winning, due to far greater competition. Miss Clark believes that, whether her students place or not, the essay will give them good citizenship training. Various topics have been suggested, ranging from education and government control, naval preparation and abrogation, to the Townsend plan. Over 100 essays will be sent to Eddie Cantor in New York, since the contest closes February 22.

Girl's League officers for the new semester are Janice Thuli, president; Lois Griffin, vice president; Jeanne Sweet, treasurer; and Katy Wilson, secretary.

Point Loma Basketeers Take Academy Boys

Turning a supposed basketball game into a wild scoring spree, the Point Loma high school varsity smashed the Army and Navy academy team 54-9 last Friday on the cadet court. The Lomans started with a rush and ran up a total of 36 points before the cadets could get under way; the score at the half read 36-2. Keck, Mixon and Isom led the scoring with 12, 11 and 10 points respectively.

Point Loma's B's showed themselves to be still in the show, defeating the academy's B's 45-34 in the preliminary game. Qualin paced the Pointer B's with 12 points, and Rock followed with 11.

Today, in their last home game of the season, the Loman basketeers engage the Oceanside Pirates in the San Diego high school gym. The Pointers are risking their championship hopes in this game, but they are favored to come through on top.

Edward VIII Becomes Ruler of the British Empire; Substitute for Unconstitutional AAA Rejected by Senate Subcommittee.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

GEORGE V, king of Great Britain and emperor of India, died in Sandringham house, peacefully and painlessly, in his seventy-first year. Immediately on his passing, his eldest son, Edward Albert, who had been prince of Wales, succeeded to the throne, which by British law, is never vacant. Next morning the state council, consisting of the queen and her four sons, which had been created by a decree which George signed a few hours before his death, proclaimed as Edward VIII. His first official act was to notify the lord mayor of London of his father's demise.

King George, who had been on the throne almost twenty-five years, was the best loved and most democratic of the world's monarchs, always just, solicitous for the welfare of his subjects, and living a simple and almost faultless domestic and official life. The new king, a confirmed bachelor, knows his vast empire intimately, having visited practically every part of it, some regions many times. Decidedly different from his father in his tastes and ways of life, he still, as the prince of Wales, has been a great favorite of the people, and in recent years, realizing that he would soon have to mount the throne, he steadily down and took an increasing interest in the affairs of the empire. He is especially liked by the laboring classes, in whose welfare he often has shown deep sympathy. That he never married has been a disappointment to the British people. Now for the first time since the reign of William IV there is no prince of Wales. Next in the line of succession is the king's brother, the duke of York, and second comes the duke's little daughter, Princess Elizabeth. There will be six months or more of official mourning for George's death, and Edward VIII will not be crowned for about one year.

The body of the dead ruler was removed from Sandringham house to the little church of St. Mary Magdalene in Sandringham. Thence it was to be taken to Westminster abbey, there to lie in state. Interment is to be in the Albert Memorial chapel at Windsor, beside the tombs of George's father and mother.

THE New Deal's substitute for the unconstitutional AAA, a bill empowering the secretary of agriculture to pay farmers who co-operate voluntarily in a program of soil conservation, was introduced in congress by Senator John B. Bankhead, Democrat, and Representative Marvin Jones, Democrat, Texas. The bill was referred to a senate subcommittee. The members of the subcommittee doubted the constitutionality of the new measure and directed Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to write a new bill. The bill rejected by the committee stated its purposes:

1. Preservation and improvement of soil fertility.
2. Promotion of the economic use of land.

3. Diminution of exploitation and unprofitable use of national soil resources.

4. Provision for and maintenance of a continuous and stable supply of agricultural commodities adequate to meet domestic and foreign consumer requirements at prices fair to both producers and consumers.

5. Re-establishment and maintenance of farm purchasing power.

Secretary Wallace was requested to write a new act that would provide a plan of co-operation with each of the 48 states, and set up a permanent program on AAA policies, Chairman Smith, Democrat, said. Saying he spoke for the committee, Smith explained:

"We said in effect to Secretary Wallace, 'Make it constitutional,' because we have the responsibility to pass it."

THE compromise bill providing payment of the soldier bonus, whipped through congress by crushing majorities, was passed on to the President, who is expected to veto it.

Congressional action on the measure was completed when the house voted 346 to 59 to accept the senate substitute for the bill it had previously passed. The senate vote was 74 to 16. Leaders of both houses claim they have sufficient votes to override a veto.

The original house bill did not provide a method for paying the cost of the bonus, which is estimated at $2,337,000,000. The senate suggested the issuance of the $50 "baby bonds" which will bear interest of 3 per cent annually until 1945 if the veteran elects to hold on to them.

Each veteran will receive the 1945 value of his adjusted compensation certificate in $50 bonds with a government check for odd amounts. Interest owed by veterans upon loans unpaid on their certificates is canceled, but there will be no refund of interest paid upon such loans.

THE present federal relief program, depending principally on work relief, CCC and public works, is alone costing approximately as much as the fourfold program which went before and which embraced these three items plus direct relief which has now been returned to the states, according to a study of the relief problem and the government finances by Kendall K. Hoyt in the Analyst.

For immediate purposes, at least, there is no prospect of much reduction in the rate of federal expenditure, according to Mr. Hoyt. In order to prevent the states from trooping back for more relief funds the government must keep its pledge to employ the arbitrary three and one-half millions of persons which have been carried since last November principally under WPA and CCC. In dollar terms this means that, according to budget estimates, the outlay for recovery and relief for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, will be almost the same as that for the preceding fiscal year, namely, three billions in round numbers, or an average of 250 millions per month.

It is within expectancy, therefore, that costs to the country will reach a new high unless economic conditions improve more rapidly than can now be foreseen.

APPARENTLY "authentic" administration sources are credited, according to Democrats in congress, with a report that Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, may become secretary of the treasury. It was said that Henry Morgenthau, present secretary of the treasury, may be made confidential adviser to the President.

One congressman, who keeps abreast of developments in government financial circles, said he was reasonably sure the change already has received some consideration from President Roosevelt. Another added that it was "a 100-to-1 shot that it is under consideration."

The reports were discounted to some extent, however, by the fact that the President has just renominated Jones for two more years as chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

One Democratic representative argued that on the basis of his past record Jones could carry into the treasury the respect and confidence of both big business and "the man in the street." He described the RFC chairman as sufficiently liberal to command the support of liberal elements and yet not leaning so far in that direction as to alarm conservatives.

PREMIER NESSIM PASHA, weary of his job since the anti-British riots started November 13, has handed the resignation of his cabinet to King Fuad I. The resignation was accepted.

Nessim found it exhausting to keep an equilibrium between the conflicting forces of the throne, the British residency, the nationalists and their patriots. But the final blow, dealt him by the British government at London, was the thinly veiled ultimatum to Egyptian Nationalism, in the form of verbal instructions for negotiations for an Angli-Egyptian treaty. The sting to Egyptian pride was in the warning that if the present negotiations fail, the British consider their hands will be free and will revise their Egyptian policy.

FACTORY sales of automobiles manufactured in the United States rose to 407,804 in December, bringing the year's total to 4,009,486, the Department of Commerce reports. The total compares with 2,753,111 in 1934. At the same time the department reported an increase of $7,483,914 in exports of automotive products during the month of November from the preceding month. November auto exports reached a valuation of $22,403,722. This is the peak figure for any corresponding month since 1929, when the export total amounted to $27,129,963.

AFTER several months of governmental stability Premier Pierre Laval has handed to Albert Lebrun, president of France, the resignation of the entire cabinet. Leaders expressed fear of a financial crisis.

The radical Socialists: Minister of State Edouard Herriot, Minister of Commerce George Bonnet, Minister of Mercantile Marine William Bertrand, and Minister of Interior Joseph Paganoux, composed a letter of resignation condemning the domestic and foreign policies of Laval. Their colleagues, Minister of Finance Marcel Regnier and Minister of Pensions Maupiol, refused to sign, declaring they would resign only with the cabinet as a whole. The Nationalist Minister of State Louis Marin, also dissented from the resignation.

Laval, informed of what was going on, handed the president the resignation of the entire cabinet.

HUEY LONG'S lieutenants, following the victory of their primary slate in Louisiana, declared that the late senator's fight on the Roosevelt administration would be pushed, with the share-the-wealth program as the spearhead of attack. Returns on the primary indicate a majority of more than 100,000 for senator, governor and other state officers. Nomination is equivalent to election.

ALL the world rejoiced over the news that Lincoln Ellsworth, noted explorer, and his pilot, Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, had been found safe and well in Little America and were on board the rescue ship Discovery II which was sent jointly by the British and Australian governments. The two men had been missing since November 23 when they started on a bold airplane flight across the Antarctic continent. In this they succeeded, but they ran out of fuel and were forced to land at the bay of Whales. They had a considerable supply of provisions, but this was almost exhausted when they were found. No word had come from them because their radio transmitter was disabled.

RECENT League of Nations developments have gone heavily against Italy's aspirations for African conquest. Of four major actions taken by the assembled powers, led again by Anthony Eden of Great Britain, two definitely were antagonistic to Italy, one was a draw and one was somewhat in the Fascist state's favor. They were:

1. The league council decided to move toward an oil embargo against Italy. A committee of experts was appointed to ascertain if oil sanctions could be made effective.

2. Britain announced a military alliance with France, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia and these nations pledged aid should Italy attack Britain because of sanctions. Rumania and Czechoslovakia promptly joined this group, making seven nations pledged to combined action against Italy should war come over efforts to stop the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

3. The league declined to send a neutral investigating body to Ethiopia, which Ethiopia asked and to which Italy consented.

4. The league conciliation committee published a report that no new peace proposals are possible at the present time, and that the league should pursue a policy of watchful waiting.

SUMMARILY overruling the government's petition for a rehearing of the Louisiana rice millers' cases, involving the refund of some 200 million dollars in processing taxes held in escrow, the United States Supreme court issued its mandate ordering the return of the funds to the taxpayers.

The court also issued its mandate in the Hoosac mills cases, in which the Agricultural Adjustment act was held unconstitutional and thereby closed the door to petitions for a rehearing in that case. In a third action the court ordered arguments on February 4 on the New Deal's motion to dismiss a suit brought by the state of Georgia to test the constitutionality of the Bankhead compulsory cotton control act.

The expected decision in the TVA case was not handed down.

UNDERSECRETARY of the Treasury Thomas Jefferson Coolidge resigned his position suddenly and unexpectedly, because he did not agree with all the policies of the administration. At the same time Assistant Secretary Lawrence W. Robert resigned. President Roosevelt accepted both resignations. It was understood there was no connection between the two withdrawals. Mr. Robert had been expected for some time to quit his post.

In his treasury position Mr. Coolidge, long a New England banker, has been in charge of such government financial affairs as the huge borrowings of money to meet heavy government expenditures. He was understood to be in accord with most Roosevelt policies but felt he was unable to give his full support to the general New Deal program.

INTRODUCED in the house by Chairman Rayburn of the interstate commerce committee is a bill for the purpose of increasing the powers of the federal trade commission to prevent unfair and deceptive trade practices. It proposed these four major changes in the present law:

1. Declares "deceptive acts and practices" unlawful in addition to the "unfair methods of competition" now specified.

2. Includes "trusts" in the scope of the law along with corporations.

3. Gives the Circuit Court of Appeals power to restrain practices involved in a commission proceeding pending final court decision.

4. Limits to 60 days from the date of a commission order the time in which application may be made to the Circuit court for review of the order.

CONGRESSMAN CONNERY of Massachusetts, chairman of the house labor committee, says that body has approved a bill designed to impose the 30-hour week on industry operating in interstate commerce, and that he hopes it will have the support of the President. The measure would license all interstate business and withhold licenses from firms which work employees more than 30 hours a week, fail to provide a wage sufficient to maintain a decent and comfortable standard of living, deny workers the right to join unions or bargain collectively, or employ persons under sixteen years of age.

How Relief Cash Is Spent

Los Angeles.—Of the $4,800,000,000 appropriated by the last Congress for unemployment relief, California received $100,000,294.52, in the May-December period last year, according to Colonel Jerome Sears, head of the California Emergency Council. More than $66,000,000 of this sum went for direct relief, he said. Administration of the works cost the State $2,030,656.

Baer May Be Rancher

Redding.—Max Baer, former heavyweight title holder, here to referee a wrestling card, said that he is contemplating purchase of the noted Brownshasta Ranch in Siskiyou County.

Fiend Slayer

Photo shows Elton M. Stono, confessed slayer of Mary Louise Stammer, 14-year-old Fresno girl. The brutal murder, which has aroused the indignation of the entire state, was assertedly committed because of a grudge against the Stammer family.

Phone Rate Changes Denied

San Francisco.—The state railroad commission has denied the application of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Southern California Telephone Company for changes in their rate structures. Principal objection to the new schedules, presented as "equalizing long distance telephone costs" was that they actually increased the cost of short distance calls.

Fire Destroys Fair Buildings

Pomona.—Fire, believed to be of incendiary origin, burned eleven of the row of thirteen stock barns at the Los Angeles County Fair grounds here, destroying $50,000 worth of property. The Agriculture Building, largest exposition structure west of Chicago, was saved.

Wheat More Deadly Than Dynamite as Ship Cargo

Wheat is one of the most dangerous cargoes carried by ocean freighters, because it may shift and cause a heavy list, or, when wet, generate a gas that, in the heat of the hold, is an explosive as deadly as dynamite.

Wheat has caused many ship wrecks, among them being that of the British steamer Antiope, which sank in mid-Atlantic in 1923. Collier's.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging back-ache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes; feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

DOAN'S PILLS

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

Start using these delicious, effective anti-acid, gently laxative wafers today.

Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letterhead. Select Products, Inc., 4402 23rd St., Long Island City, N. Y.

Seeing Is Believing, and
Prof Apparently Was Absent

We hope this is the end of that series of absent-minded professor jokes which we and others have inflicted upon the public: The tale tells of the professor who went to a barber shop and got a shave. After the operation he continued to occupy the chair; the barber thought he must have fallen asleep, and respectfully asked if this were so.

"No, my good man," he said. "I am not asleep. The fact is I am frightfully near-sighted. When I took off my glasses, I was unable to see myself in the mirror opposite. Naturally, I supposed I had already gone home."

Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

EAT OR SLEEP

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."—Mrs. Jas. Miller.

Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

Oregon Has the World's Largest Siphon

THE axiom that water seeks its own level is the principle behind the siphon. The one shown above is the world's largest, yet in principle it is no different from the little glass siphons used in chemistry laboratories. The Malheur river siphon in Oregon is built of steel pipe 80 inches in diameter, and is more than four miles long. It carries the main canal of the Qwyhee project through Malheur river valley and over a low range of hills beyond, without requiring any pumping.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

LIGHTFOOT DOES THE WISE THING

ALL the rest of that day the hunter with the terrible gun lay hidden in the bushes of the pasture where he could watch for Lightfoot the Deer to leave the place of safety he had found when he swam across the Big River. It required a lot of patience on the part of the hunter, but the hunter had plenty of patience. It sometimes seems as if hunters have more patience than any other people.

But this hunter waited in vain. Jolly, round, red Mr. Sun sank down in the west to his bed behind the Purple Hills. The Black Shadows crept out and grew blacker. One by one the stars began to twinkle. Still the hunter waited, and still there was no sign of Lightfoot. At last it became so dark that it was useless for the hunter to remain longer.

Disappointed and once more becoming angry, he tramped back to the Big River, got into his boat, and rowed across to the other side. Then he tramped home and his thoughts were very bitter. He knew that he would have shot Lightfoot had it not been for the man who had protected Lightfoot. He even began to suspect that this man had himself killed Lightfoot, for he had been sure that as soon as he had become rested Lightfoot would start for the woods and Lightfoot had done nothing of the kind. In fact, the hunter had not had so much as another glimpse of Lightfoot.

The reason the hunter had been so disappointed was that Lightfoot was smart. He was smart enough to understand that the man who was saving him from the hunter had done it because he was a true friend. All afternoon Lightfoot had rested on a bed of soft hay in an open shed and had watched this man going about his work and taking the utmost care to do nothing to frighten him.

"He not only will let no one else harm me, but he himself will not harm me," thought Lightfoot. "As long as he is near I am safe. I'll stay right around here until the hunting season is over, then I'll swim back across the Big River to my home in the dear Green Forest."

So all afternoon Lightfoot rested and did not so much as put his nose outside that open shed. That is why the hunter got no glimpse of him. When it became dark, so dark that he knew there was no longer danger, Lightfoot got up and stepped out under the stars. He was feeling quite himself again. His splendid strength had returned. He bounded lightly across the meadow and up into the brushy pasture where the hunter had been hidden.

There and in the woods back of the pasture he browsed, filling his stomach. But at the first hint of the coming of another day Lightfoot turned back, and when his friend the farmer came out early in the morning to milk the cows there was Lightfoot back in the open shed. The farmer smiled. "You are as wise as you are handsome, old fellow," said he.

SOME GOOD RECIPES

IF YOU like the Chinese dishes this will be one to prepare for the guests who also enjoy them:

Crab and Egg Omelet.

If the fresh shrimps or crab is used, cook and cool. Shred one cupful of crab or shrimp. Cut one cupful of lean pork into inch long narrow strips. Use scissors for the cutting. Soak one-fourth of a cupful of dried mushrooms, then cut into strips. Slice one large mild onion and cut fine into strips. Fry the pork in two tablespoonfuls of peanut oil until tender and brown. Add onion, one cupful of bamboo shoots and mushrooms, a tablespoonful of soy sauce. Just before dinner beat six eggs, add the finely cut crab or shrimp and the vegetable mixture. Fry in a small amount of peanut oil, in small bits like a pancake.

Lobster Club Sandwich.

Toast bread cut one-third of an inch thick, butter and keep hot. Allow two slices for each person to be served.

THE THINGS
YOU THINK

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE things you think men care about
When you stay home, when you step out,
Are not the things, it may befall,
That people care about at all.

Some are so careful of their dress,
Yet guilty of the carelessness,
Some merry night, some busy day,
Of what they do and what they say.

The things you think that callers note,
And long remember when remote,
Are not the things remembered then
By other women, other men.

Some are so careful that the drapes
Are certain colors, certain shapes,
And yet their house may be a place
Without a single Christian grace.

The things you think that men discuss
When time has had its time with us
Are not the things that men relate,
Our worth, or wealth, to estimate.
Some are so careful that they leave
A great estate to those who grieve,
And yet their monument shall be
Not money, but a memory.

TRY THIS TRICK

By PONJAY HARRAH

Copyright by Public Ledger, Inc.

HEADS OR TAILS

THIS puzzling experiment has the merit of proving more intriguing the more often it is repeated, for it perplexes those persons who think they can solve it if you do it again.

You let some one spin a coin on the table. Your back is turned while the coin is spinning. As soon as it stops twirling, you announce whether the coin lies heads or tails. Your guess is right.

A lucky guess? Not at all, for each time the trick is repeated you tell the result correctly. That is why it grows more and more bewildering.

You must use your own coin for the trick. Make a nick with a knife in the edge of the coin, on the head side. Listen carefully every time some one spins the coin. If the coin rattles to a slow easy stop, heads will be up. If it stops with a abrupt click you know that tails is the answer.

laxatives, and keep reducing the dose until the bowels need no help at all.

Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why your laxative should be in liquid form. A liquid dose can be regulated to the drop.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that form no habit even with children. Syrup Pepsin is the nicest tasting, nicest acting laxative you ever tried.

The Big Show---Barbs And Brickbats

Everyone knew it was about time for things to start popping in a big way on the national political scene. But few were prepared for the concentrated charge of fireworks that fell on the nation in such a dazzling display in the fortnight just past. Al Smith led off with his attack on the New Deal. Then Joe Robinson, Democratic leader of the House, replied with a scathing indictment of what he called Smith's "about face". Out of Topeka, Kansas, thundered called Smith's "about face". Out of Topeka, Kansas, thundered called Smith's "about face". Out of Topeka, Kansas, thundered called Smith's "about face".

All this, mind you, in one week. And little of it, of course, proved anything of great consequence. Of one thing we have been assured. The coming presidential election fight will be one of the bitterest, one of the most spectacular, and one of the most amusing in the history of these United States. Witness, for example, the "phrase-coiner" ability the candidates have already demonstrated. Of those Democrats who disagree with the Administration, Al Smith said, "We can either take on the mantle of hypocrisy, or we can take a walk—and we will probably do the latter." Toward the close of his speech his words were, "and I ask them (the New Deal) to read from holy scripture the parable of the prodigal son and to follow his example. 'Stop. Stop wasting your substance in a foreign land and come back to your father's house.'" Joe Robinson, in reply to this, hunted up another quotation. Intimating that Smith was a deserter from the Democratic party, he said, "The voice (of Smith) is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau."

As for the other candidates, they did not do so badly in the matter of coining catchy phrases, catchy sentences. Landon's most quoted words were, "Let me make this emphatic. The Constitution of the United States is not an obstacle to progress. It is the balance wheel of progress." Talmadge of Georgia phrased his bid to displace Roosevelt as Democratic candidate thusly: "Rewrite the platform of 1932. Nominate a man on this platform whose word is so good that the best test of it is to have the New Dealers call him a liar. Then America will know that his word is good." No one has called Talmadge a liar, exactly, but it is felt by some of his supporters that some backers of the Administration have intimated his words were not always strictly correct. Now as though all this were not enough hullabaloo for one week, there came a few more choice bits. And the grand total prompted one Washington commentator to suggest that the week go down in history as "National Jitters Week." To all the above, he added the facts that.....Republicans threatened to impeach Secretary of Agriculture Wallace for criticizing the Supreme Court.....a certain author intimated that the brain trust is plotting a third term for Roosevelt.....a speaker denounced the President before a ladies' patriotic society, and the U. S. Navy so resented it that their officers cancelled speaking engagements before the group, and the Marine band retracted its offer to play.

It is just a little confusing, is it not? Actually, while the hot air means little, the confusion of it does complicate the job of the man on the street, whose task it is to separate the wheat from the chaff and select the man and the policies which seem to him most suited to carry on the very serious business of government. But that is one of the characteristics of Democracy, and since we know that in suffering it we are maintaining the popular form of government, there is little we can do but suffer in silence. Our chief job, always, is not merely to read or listen to the words of the candidates, but always to search for motives. Why has Al Smith deserted the regular Democratic party, for example? Is it because he sincerely cannot support the policies of the present Administration, or is it because he split personally, and bitterly, with Roosevelt at the last Democratic convention? Do past performances of these men in public office jibe with what they are saying they can and will do now? Let's not be deluded by fancy phraseology.

SYNOPSIS

John Spencer and his cousin, Geoffrey Bohun, are vacationing in Austria. Geoffrey is a gifted portrait painter but prefers to paint landscapes. While strolling in the forest, John hears English voices, and decides to investigate. From safe cover he finds four men burying a man in green livery who, evidently, had been murdered. They are the leader of the gang, the others are Dewdrop, Rush and Bugle. Unfortunately, John makes himself known to the assassins by dropping a letter with his name and address. He tells Geoffrey and his chauffeur, Barley, of his adventure. Geoffrey, realizing that John's life is in danger, declares he must vanish. Spencer discovers that the livery of the murdered man corresponds to the livery of the servants of Yorkick castle, and tells Countess Helena, mistress of the castle, what he had seen. With Geoffrey and Barley, John starts for Annabel, a nearby village. They encounter Pharaoh, in making their getaway they exchange shots with the gang, without serious result. They arrive at Plumage farm, on the Yorkick estate, where Lady Helena had requested John and his cousin to meet her. She reveals to them that her father had converted his immense fortune into gold sovereigns and hidden them away in a secret vault in the castle. Knowing that his son, Valentine, Helena's brother, was incapable of controlling the fortune, he had revealed it to Helena alone just before his death. In some manner the news had leaked out, and Pharaoh is after the treasure. They planned that Geoffrey and Barley would go to Salzburg to watch for Pharaoh, while John was to remain at Plumage, lying low in the daytime and patrolling the roads about Yorkick from dusk to dawn.

CHAPTER III—Continued

I started to run down the road with Sabre loping beside me, two inches away from my knee. . . .

The car had stopped now, quite close to the entrance drive.

Cautiously I made my way forward. I was almost abreast of the tail-light, when Bugle spoke.

"Two hundred miles a day was what he said. And he took the speedometer reading before he went."

"E would," said Rush warmly.

"Cause he ain't no fool," said Bugle. "He's seen your shape before."

"Now look 'ere, Bugle," said Rush. "I'll work the night through, if I'm doin' good. But we ain't goin' to find little Arthur by rakin' these roads."

"Who's rakin' roads?" said Bugle. "Pharaoh says 'Watch that castle,' an' Pharaoh's right. That livery's known. An' once he's found the lady, he'll find her good. 'Where the carcass is,' says Pharaoh," and, with that, he laughed fatly.

"Gimme the pumps," said Rush. "He's got to take in petrol and 'ow many Rolls d'you see?"

"Pumps," said Bugle contemptuously. "An' when Pharaoh asks if we've got him, what do we say? 'Well, we ain't exactly got him, but 'ere's a list of the petrol-pumps he's used.' He let out a bitter laugh. "You know, you'll buy it yet. Maybe you can open a door, but—"

"E's a nasty mind," said Rush. "That's Gawd's truth, an' you know it. Look at that voice. Off to Salzburg first-class, but no one else must let up. 'E's in some night-club now—you can lay to that. But we've got to work, we 'ave, comin' the country, to pick up the squirt he missed."

"Ow far 'ave we done?" said Bugle. After an audible struggle with the tale the speedometer told—

"Ninety-four," said Rush. "Gawd 'elp," said Bugle. "An' he said two hundred a day."

"Well, we can't do both," said Rush. "If 'e said to watch the castle—"

"Figures is proof," said Bugle. "Anyways young Arthur ain't here," and, with that, he let in his clutch.

I ran for the Rolls like a madman and, panting incoherence to Helena, started the engine and backed the car on to the road. An instant later we were flying in pursuit of Bugle and Rush. After a frantic ten minutes I knew that my quarry was lost, but I went on in desperation for half an hour; then stopped by the side of the road.

"John, they missed you by inches. If they'd met you full in the fairway, you'd have been done. I tell you frankly, I've learned quite a lot tonight. And if they come out tomorrow, I bet we follow them home."

"We?" said I. "You're not coming out again."

"I certainly am," said Helena. "For one thing I simply love it, and you're not going to say after this that you can do it alone?"

To my horrid disappointment, we kept a fruitless vigil the next two nights. By now, of course, I had come to know the roads, and the two of us, working together, were continually ready to cope with whatever befell.

So two days and two nights went by, and I had no news for Geoffrey, and, to judge from the wires which he sent, he had none for me.

Our third patrol was over, and my lady and I were riding back from Plumage as the dawn was peering over the eastern woods.

Helena turned to me. "Will you come and dine this evening? I'm not going to dress."

"I'd love to, Helena."

"Then you ride up by yourself at a quarter to eight and tell Axel to bring up the roan and be at the edge of the forest at half-past nine."

I hesitated. Then—

"I wish," I said, "you'd give it a miss tonight."

"It isn't every day that I fall foul of people like Pharaoh and Pharaoh's crowd. The time's out of joint, my dear John; and if I'm to help reduce it, I've got to step out of my beat. And here we are. Don't look. I'm going to get off."

As she gave me the reins, I had the maddest impulse to throw myself off my horse and take her into my arms.

As I pulled myself together—"You're trembling, John. Are you cold?"

"No," said I. "I'm dreaming. You know how dogs shake and quiver when they're dreaming some curious dream."

"What are you dreaming?" asked Helena.

"That you and I have ridden up through the forest to the castle to which you belong; that the dawn's coming up, like the frost on a glass of cold water to wake a workaday world; that you're standing there with Sabre, looking at me and smiling."

Her smile deepened into a laugh. "Am I so unreal?"

"Oh, no. You're wonderfully real. But all the rest is fantastic—the hour, the setting, our having the world to ourselves. And you've done it all, Helena. You've made the magic, created the atmosphere. When you go, it's going to go, too. . . . It's terribly hard to explain." I concluded feebly enough; "but I think you've a power you don't know of, and that's the truth."

"I shall have to be careful," said Helena.

It was twelve hours later that I opened a door of the Rolls and regarded the petrol-gauge. This was disconcerting. There was fuel enough for us to do our patrol; but if our quarry appeared there was not enough fuel for pursuit. There was nothing for it. Before we did anything else we must drive to some petrol-pump. For a long time I hesitated, considering whether or no I should not go out forthwith and fetch it alone. But in the end I decided that, though it was most inconvenient, I had not sufficient warrant for breaking my promise not to leave Plumage by day. I, therefore, contented myself with cleaning and oiling the engine. I drove the car on the apron in front of the house, and in this way the car was all ready and when the time came, we should have but to leave our saddles and take our seats.

Then I washed my hands and sat down to write to my cousin; but he never had his letter, for before I had written a page the farmer's wife came smiling to serve my tea.

What that good woman thought of Helena will hardly go into words. All her talk was of the Countess—of her wisdom and understanding of her lively beauty and charm, and since she had seen her christened, she had memories by the hundred to illustrate everything she said.

Of the Count, however, the woman said nothing at all.

That evening I strolled in the meadows, until it was time to change, and I shall always remember the stiffness that hung like a mantle about the meadows and woods. Not that the air was heavy; there was no sign of thunder; the sky was clear. Yet the calm was that which sometimes precedes the tempest—a strange, unnatural condition that was not peace.

When I rode into sight of Yorkick, I saw that a flag had been hoisted on one of the towers. I could not see the device, for the breeze had fallen to nothing, and the bunting was lying lifeless against the staff. No flag had been flying on Tuesday, when Geoffrey and I had visited Yorkick for lunch, but I supposed that today was some festival which it was the custom to honor throughout the land.

My supposition was wrong. As I was ushered into the library, Helena rose from a table and took my hand.

"My brother's arrived," she said. "He's only been here twenty minutes, and, as he's brought a friend with him, I've had to put off dinner till half past eight. But that's nothing. What really matters is that he's rather a handful. . . ."

I took my seat beside her on a sofa. "John," she continued, "I ought to have told you before, but I thought that he'd give me more notice. I'd only time to send the car to the station to meet his train."

Remembering what she had told me of other guests—

"And his friend?" said I.

She shrugged her shoulders. "Oh, the usual sort, I suppose. I haven't even seen him. Never mind. The point is this, Valentine must know nothing of what is afoot. He doesn't know of the gold, and he must not know. He mustn't know about young Florin, except that he's dead. I've told him I've lent you Plumage—you and your cousin, of course; that your cousin painted our uncle's reason enough. But what makes things difficult is this. He is the Count of Yorkick, and, as such, when he's here in the castle he has absolute say. I simply do not count. My father did what he could. He left me the contents of the castle and everything else that he had, except the estate. He hadn't the power to leave that away from his son and heir. And so I've a definite hold on Valentine—which he most deeply resents. But sometimes when he is here the knowledge that he is all-powerful goes to his head."

"I'm bound to tell you all this. He'll probably be quite all right; but if he should show off this evening you'll understand. As I say, I've not seen his friend. If he's no good, I'll soon have him out of the place. But whatever he's like, remember that he is my brother's guest. And Valentine's Count of Yorkick. Don't forget that."

"I'll be very careful," I said.

Then we talked of other things and wondered how Geoffrey and Barley were getting on and whether Rush and Bugle would give us our chance tonight. There seemed to be no reason for cancelling the plans we had made. It was twenty minutes to nine when we heard a burst of laughter, and the library doors were opened by the servant that stood without.

Then the Count came in, still laughing, with his arm about Pharaoh's shoulders and a challenging look in his eyes.

CHAPTER IV

Flight.

How Helena knew that it was Pharaoh, I cannot tell. She knew him the instant she saw his face, for I felt her stiffen beside me before she got to her feet. For Pharaoh himself, I can only say that his address was as perfect as mine was mean.

The Count of Yorkick was speaking. "Helena, this is Captain Fanning."

Pharaoh came to her quickly and took her hand. As he looked into her eyes, he spoke very low.

"What a good thing I missed Mr. Spencer. Had I hit him, I should have discarded my ace of trumps."

Before she could answer, he laid his left hand on my arm.

"Mr. Spencer and I," he said, turning, "have met before. In fact, I left his cousin at Salzburg—in excellent health. He was very busy when I saw him. I think he was seeking some subject. . . . I find all his work delightful—he takes such pains."

What immediately followed I cannot clearly remember, because, I suppose, my wits were all over the place.

I know that I stood like some convict, listening to the formality of judgment and finding the grave occasion a hideous dream. I know that Helena introduced me and that I shook hands with the Count in a very good-looking boy, with an overbearing manner and the signs of drink in his face. And I know that while Pharaoh was speaking, he kept a hand under his jacket upon his hip. He might have spared the gesture: my pistol was in the Rolls.

All the time my brain was rampant, darting hither and thither.

In a flash we had been confounded. My cousin and Barley were at Salzburg, but Pharaoh was here in the castle, the guest of the Count. And Dewdrop was here as his servant, and Bugle and Rush were at hand. Though the castle was full of servants, the Countess was powerless as long as her brother was there, besides, my life was forfeit, if Helena lifted a hand. If she sought to disillusion her brother, Pharaoh had only to whisper the secret his sister kept.

That nothing might be wanting to seal our discomfiture—

"My sister tells me you're at Plumage," said the Count. "I hope you've everything she said."

Of the Count, however, the woman said nothing at all.

That evening I strolled in the meadows, until it was time to change, and I shall always remember the stiffness that hung like a mantle about the meadows and woods. Not that the air was heavy; there was no sign of thunder; the sky was clear. Yet the calm was that which sometimes precedes the tempest—a strange, unnatural condition that was not peace.

Then we talked of other things and wondered how Geoffrey and Barley were getting on and whether Rush and Bugle would give us our chance tonight. There seemed to be no reason for cancelling the plans we had made. It was twenty minutes to nine when we heard a burst of laughter, and the library doors were opened by the servant that stood without.

Then the Count came in, still laughing, with his arm about Pharaoh's shoulders and a challenging look in his eyes.

All Around the House

Flower pots used in the house are made very decorative if painted with water color paints.

A bottle of furniture polish rubbed into clean dry mop will give hard-wood floors an excellent polish.

Neck pieces of beef and lamb make delicious soups and stews.

A noted chemist gives us the information that science has discovered that it is not dangerous to leave canned foods in the can after it has been opened. They remain in better condition until eaten if the unused portion is kept in the can. There is nothing about the can that will contribute to the spoilage of food.

To keep the coffee pot sweet fill it with water to which one tablespoon of soda has been added and set on the stove until water-boils.

To remove dust from upholstered furniture cover the surface with a large turkish towel that has been wrung out of water to which a tablespoon of ammonia has been added. Beat with carpet sweeper and all dust will adhere to towel.

Equal parts of ammonia and turpentine will remove indelible ink marks from white fabrics.

When postage stamps stick together lay a thin paper over them and run a hot iron over the paper. The heat does not remove mudlage.

Keep a large shaker containing six parts salt to one part pepper on the shelf of your kitchen range to use in seasoning foods.

Events in the Lives of Little Men

WILLING TO BARGAIN

"Well, I never," murmured Smith, looking up from his paper. "It says here that a man out West bartered his wife for a cow."

His little wife looked shocked.

"You wouldn't barter me for a cow, would you, Henry darling?" she purred.

He was silent. Then:

"Of course not, Henrietta," he replied. "But I'd hate to have some one tempt me with a good second-hand car."—Answers Magazine.

SURE SHOT

"Do you think women would make good soldiers?"

"If they were as persistent in battle as in argument they would be invincible."

Not to Be Forwarded

"So far, so good," said the examiner. "Now, then, in case of fatal accident where do you want your body sent?"

"Where do I want de wick sent, boss?" inquired the applicant.

"Your body—it would have to be shipped somewhere, you know."

The candidate made answer as he edged toward the door.

"If you don't mind, mister," he said, "I'll just take it along wid me now."

And he did.

Hm-m!

Small Boy (excitedly)—Teacher, tell us about the end of the world.

While the teacher paused a moment for the wise answer, another boy said: "I can tell him. The world is round; and a thing that is round ain't got no end."

Double Truth

"Some of you pedestrians walk as if you owned the streets."

"Yes, and some of you motorists drive around just as if you owned your cars."—Masonic Craftsman.

Stop and Maybe Go

Teacher—Don't you know that punctuation means a pause?

Willie—Yes, teacher. A motorist punctuated a tire in front of our house and paused there a half hour.

Sure Pop

Teacher—Now, children, I've told you about foods that contain vitamins A and B. What food contains C?

Johnny—Teacher, there's chocolate, coconut and candy.

That's the Problem

Teacher—I just don't know what to do about your son. He doesn't do the problems at all like I showed him.

Mother—Oh, Henry, always has been very original!

FANS KNOW

"A man ought never to learn to do card tricks."

"Why not?"

"If he wins in a card game every body looks suspicious, and if he doesn't win everybody laughs."

Wrong Again

Jones was nothing if not gallant, but he usually said the wrong thing. Mrs. Browne, who was exactly the same age as her husband, but would not admit it, was entertaining some friends, Jones among them.

"My husband is forty," she was saying. "You wouldn't believe it, but there's actually ten years' difference in our ages."

"Impossible!" interposed Jones, anxious to say something agreeable.

"I'm sure you look quite as young as he does."

The Weighty Problem

"Well, Peggy," said the neighbor, "and how do you like your new governor?"

Peggy thought a moment and then said: "I half like her and half don't like her, but I think I half don't like her the most."

Familiar Air

Biffie—Was Mildew right when he told me you bought your car for a song?

Piffie—Well, not exactly. I did get it in exchange for some notes.

Vegetable Oils New Source of Fat for Food Purposes

They Have Energy and Fuel Value and Are Concentrated.

Butter, cream, lard and the many vegetable oils all belong under the classification of fats. Like sugar and starch, these fats are fuel or energy foods, and with the exception of cream, which has a large proportion of water, they are concentrated foods.

A tablespoonful of any of these fats—hard or liquid—vies about one hundred calories. "Mineral" oil, which in appearance, has the characteristics of liquid vegetable fat, has, however, no food value. It is used in the diet sometimes as a lubricant to hasten the elimination of waste material. It is also occasionally used in the preparation of salad dressings in reducing diets. It is entirely without flavor, but when seasoned well makes a very good substitute for olive, corn or cottonseed oil, which are commonly used for salad dressing.

The vegetable oils except olive oil are newer sources of fat for food purposes. Until the World War caused a deficit in the fat supply corn, cottonseed, coconut and palm oil were used only to a small extent. Now, however, we find them used largely. About three-quarters of the corn and cottonseed oil produced are now used for food purposes. Some of these are in the form of oil, some are naturally solid and others are hardened by special processes. The food value of a liquid and a hard fat is the same, but there is a difference in the way they blend with other materials, and for this reason it has been thought 'worth while' to "hydrogenate" some liquid fats. Either, however, can be used to good advantage as shortening if the proper method of mixing them in cake and muffin recipes is used.

Butter Substitutes.

There are a number of butter substitutes on the market. Most of these are made by churning a vegetable oil or beef fat with milk. Some of them have much the same texture as butter and a mild flavor which makes them possible to use on the table or in cooking. The flavor is not equal to that of standard butter, but the low cost and consistent quality of the best brands make them a valuable addition to our list of foods. They should, of course, be bought as margarine, not as butter, and the food law requires that these products be plainly marked. There are also regulations against coloring these products to look like butter. The fact that palm oil has a natural yellow color has complicated the regulations.

Besides the fuel value that all fats have, butter is rich in vitamin A. The margarine varies in this, depending whether they are made of animal or vegetable fat and upon how much milk is used in their manufacturing and upon whether a concentrate of this vitamin is added as it is to at least one product of this sort.

The daily plan for food naturally contains fat in the form of butter, cream and salad oil and other fats used in cooking. We also get a certain amount of fat with the meat we eat. The body is equipped with digestive organs which take care of a certain amount of fat. If digestion is disturbed it may be advisable at times to cut down this reasonable amount.

Fat, however, that is heated to a high temperature develops irritating acids, and for this reason fried foods should be eaten in moderation. Food which is fried is usually incrustated in a hard coating covered with fat which must be disintegrated before the digestive juices can reach it. Another reason for eating fried foods in moderation.

Chocolate Butter Frosting.

4 tablespoons butter
2 cups confectioners sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
1½ squares chocolate, melted
4 teaspoons milk

Cream butter, add one cupful sugar and cream together thoroughly. Add vanilla and chocolate. Add remaining sugar gradually, beating well after each addition. Thin with milk until of right consistency to spread.

LOCAL AUTHOR'S STORIES HAVE BRISK DEMAND

Charles G. Booth, who has lived here at 4695 Coronado avenue, and part time in the San Diego back country, is meeting with unprecedented success with his stories, according to the following clipping from the San Diego Union:

"Charles Booth, San Diego writer, has been informed that 'The General Died at Dawn,' his latest book, has made a profit of $10,000 for him, though not even printed yet.

"Booth is being pursued by five agents, has been signed by Paragons, has been given $10,000, can write, and has received $10,000 for the unpublished book. Paragons, which paid the sum, will employ Booth to adapt the book to a picture in which Gary Cooper and Carole Lombard will act.

"Ernst Lubitsch is reported to be enthusiastic over Booth's 'The General Died at Dawn,' and other work. Lewis Milestone, director, is preparing the Oriental background for the Booth production.

"Booth is a member of the Padres, a group of San Diego writers. He has gone a gradual way to fame, authorities say, and has written a long series of books, many of them mystery stories executed with great literary skill."

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

Paul's words to the Corinthians, "The Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God," constitute the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Spirit" on Sunday in all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Lesson Sermon includes these verses from Paul's letter to the Romans: "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death. For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit."

Among the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, are the words: "Unless the harmony and immortality of man are becoming more apparent, we are not gaining the true idea of God; and the body will reflect what governs it, whether it be Truth or error, understanding or belief, Spirit or matter. Therefore 'acquaint now thyself with Him, and be at peace.'"
